As Picket Line Yielded

WHILE officials of both sides sought a settlement in the strike at the Chrysler Corporation's Dodge plant in Detroit which has resulted in idleness for 150,000 workers, some 200 Negro foundry workers entered the strike-bound main Dodge plant to the jeers of more than 3,000 union pickets as shown above. More than 1,000 police were on hand but no trouble developed. The strike was called by the CIO's United Automobile Workers Union, October 6.

TWO DEALERS SMILE

At least two Circleville persons were made happy by the conclusion of the Chrysler Corporation-CIO controversy in Detroit. Broad smiles broke over the faces of James Stout, Dodge-Plymouth dealer, and Ralph M. Leach, Chrysler-Plymouth dealer, when they learned that production would be at full speed by early next week. Despite numerous orders for new cars, the dealers of Chrysler products were not able to supply their customers because of the tie-up.

since October 6 were to begin the return to the plants tomorrow morning, and full operations were expected to be reached by Monday or Tuesday.

The corporation is expected to rush operations at capacity speed in an effort to restock dealers, who have been out of cars for weeks, and to recoup as much as possible from the heavy competitive blow dealt by the strike. The strike halted Chrysler production in the midst of the lush trade of the new model year, leaving Chrysler dealers with nothing to

FLAMES DAMAGE NAZI FREIGHTER IN PUERTO PORT

CALI, Colombia, Nov. 29.—Suspecting sabotage, authorities today investigated a fire which broke out in the hold of the 3,664-ton German freighter Helgoland, which has been anchored at Puerto Colombia almost since commencement of the European war.

One hundred barrels of glycerine were stored in the hold where the fire occurred. The ship is manned by a Chinese crew which refused to sail it to Germany.

The flames were quickly extinguished but authorities said they believed the crew had attempted sabotage.

TRAFFIC DEATH ACCIDENT, SAYS COUNTY CORONER

A verdict of accidental death was announced Wednesday by Coroner C. E. Bowers in the death of Mrs. Icy C. Vandagriff, 71, wife of Edwin Vandagriff, Scioto and Huston Streets, who was killed November 16 in a traffic accident.

Mrs. Vandagriff was struck by an auto driven by Lawrence Lane, 22, 445 Half Avenue, as she was crossing Ohio Street between Court Street and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Coroner Bowers said no formal inquest would be held.

NAZIS APPROVE SOVIET ACTION AGAINST FINNS

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Germany today aligned itself morally and sympathetically with Soviet Russia in the dispute between the U. S. S. R. and Finland on the grounds that the Soviet Union's vital security, existence and rights are involved.

Responsible quarters predicted that in the event of a Russo-Finnish clash, Germany will adopt a position of "benevolent neutrality with full understanding of the Russian attitude."

Under such circumstances, the Reich was represented as determined to stand aside and permit Russia a free hand.

KUHN MAY KNOW HIS FATE TODAY

State Brands Him 'Liar' As Court Prepares To Charge Jurors

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Branded a "liar and common thief" by the prosecution and pictured by the defense as a much-wronged individual persecuted for political and racial reasons, Fritz Kuhn may know some time today which description has registered with the jury trying him on larceny and forgery charges.

Judge James G. Wallace was to deliver his charge today and then the jury was to retire and consider a verdict. A 30 year maximum sentence is possible if Kuhn is found guilty on all counts.

The state says that Kuhn is a thief and a liar and that he made a "personal racket" out of the Bund and appropriated its monies to his own purposes. It holds up the testimony of Mrs. Florence Camp to show that Kuhn spent Bund funds on her and to show that he lied even to this woman, he claimed to love, by setting a wedding date he had no intention of keeping.

The state says further that Kuhn made a false entry in the Bund checkbook (second degree forgery) indicating that he had drawn a $500 check for Attorney James D. C. Murray and that he actually pocketed the money (larceny.) The "leadership principle" as brought out in the case is labeled a "fabricated and floating defense" which denies itself because the witnesses who swore to it also admitted that there was a limit to Kuhn's powers and that the membership could even impeach him.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN PROTESTS LOSS OF MAIL BAGS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—Capt. Alfred Preede, master of the Black Diamond line steamship, Black Eagle, today charged that the commander of a British destroyer had confiscated 1,156 bags of United States mail en route to Holland, Belgium and Germany.

Docking here after a harrowing trip through mine-filled seas, the American merchant marine captain declared his ship was held up for 11 days in the English channel and for 22 hours outside of Rotterdam by British war vessels.

A British commander who signed himself "R. Doyonett, commander of the Royal Navy, Ramsgate navy base," took off the bags of mail October 27, Capt. Preede declared. The first delay of 11 days was for inspection of cargo.

Describing the stopping of his vessel after it left Rotterdam November 16, Capt. Preede asserted: "The commander questioned each of our eight passengers, but released them all. Six were American, one was Dutch and the other Swedish." The Black Eagle will be on a South American run "from now on," Preede added.

Toledo Councilman Offers Solution To Trouble In His City

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29.—Cleveland's reduced relief staff went about the work today of passing out food orders to only the neediest relief clients as welfare officials predicted that $298,000 remaining in the relief fund would be exhausted by December 10.

Crowds began to arrive early at the six district relief stations and extra police and several firemen were placed on duty to prevent any mass disturbances.

One crowd, in front of the Wilson relief office, became disorderly yesterday, starting fights among themselves for positions in line. Three squads of police quickly restored order. Later merchants became alarmed and asked for more police and two more squads were sent.

At another station two men were arrested for starting fights and were later released on their own recognizance.

Only Needy Provided Aid

Meanwhile welfare officials continued in effect the order of Mayor Harold H. Burton that relief be given only to families with children and others in direst need.

Should there be no further funds for relief distribution by December 10 Cleveland's city services will have to be cut, Mayor Burton has said. He pledged that in order to prevent "starvation" such cuts would be made even if the city's services had to be "destroyed."

Following a conference with his cabinet, Burton announced there would be no change in his decision to drop all employable single persons and all couples where one

Soviet Charges Three More "Incidents" At Border

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 29.—Firm conviction that a peaceful settlement of the Russo-Finnish crisis will eventually be reached was expressed today by United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt as Finland's government countered new Soviet charges of border provocations. Finland's reply to Russia's latest protest, couched in diplomatic terms and accomplished by a "token" withdrawal of Finnish troops "some distance" from the border expresses astonishment over un-lateral abrogation of the Russo-Finnish non-aggression pact by Moscow last night.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Soviet Russia is anxious to settle the Russo-Finnish question speedily as important developments are expected in the Balkans, a Reuter (British) news agency dispatch from Helsingfors stated today.

By International News Service
Facing a situation they admitted was extremely grave, Finland's government leaders today sought to bring about some peaceful solution of the Russo-Finnish crisis and at the same time prevent their country from falling under expanding Soviet influence as Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania have done.

The Finnish government acted in the face of a stiff Russian note denouncing the Russo-Finnish non-aggression pact, accusations that the Finns were seeking to menace Leningrad, charges of new border incidents and radio warnings that they had brought themselves "nearer to the hour of revenge."

British Blast German Air Raider Out of Skies

LONDON, Nov. 29—A German airplane was shot down in the North Sea near the Northumberland coast Monday, according to an official air ministry announcement.

While details were not given, it was assumed the plane was enroute to the Firth of Forth for reconnaissance purposes when it was brought down.

Fighting planes of the Royal Air Force ascended as soon as the plane was sighted. The battle occurred off shore in full view of numerous spectators.

The plane was a fast Heinkel. A life-boat went out and planes circled the spot soon after the machine was shot down, but no survivors were located.

Spectators said the plane dived vertically into the sea.

At the same time, the admiralty announced still another shiping loss. The 1,023-ton British trawler Rubislaw was mined off the southeast coast of England yesterday and 13 members of her crew drowned. Four survivors were picked up by a nearby minesweeper.

Earlier machine gun and anti-aircraft fire was heard over the Thames estuary but no air raid signal was sounded. Bursts of machine gun fire also were heard in a southeast coastal town and British planes ascended. It was later stated, however, that the firing was not caused by any enemy action.

Loss Off Isles Denied
Germany's claim that Lieut. Commander Gunther Prien had sunk a British cruiser of the 10,000-ton London class east of the Shetland Islands in a second major blow against the British navy was flatly denied today by the British admiralty.

An official communique issued by the admiralty stated: "The German claim that a cruiser of the London class has was employable, from the relief rolls.

TOLEDO, Nov. 29—A plan through which it was hoped Toledo's relief creditors could receive approximately half a million dollars with which to extend further credit for food to the needy was being perfected today.

The plan, as outlined by Councilman Addison Q. Thacher, would include obtaining the backing of prominent Toledoans, who would guarantee to the merchants payment of $900,000 in bills now due if they would restore credit. Credit for relief food was stopped by merchants several weeks ago.

In addition to obtaining the financial support of wealthy Toledo residents, Thacher had the promise of Gov. John W. Bricker that he would support re-enactment of the Milroy bill in the legislature which would fund the city's relief deficit for 1939.

Through the Milroy act, Toledo was able to pay its 1938 relief deficit and Thacher said he was confident the same thing could be done this year.

In an effort to relieve the relief load city officials went to Washington today to ask the WPA to open Toledo projects and also to leave extended the deadline of June 1, 1940, fixed by WPA for completion of the $9,400,000 Lake Erie water supply project.

Frien was commander of the German submarine which on October 14 penetrated the defenses of the Scapa Flow naval base and sank the battleship Royal Oak.

At the same time, the British air ministry announced that British aircraft had carried out an attack against the German naval base at Borkum, an island in the North Sea at the mouth of the Ems river. A communiqué stated:

"One of our long range fighter patrols, which was sent out to search for enemy mine laying seaplanes, reconnoitered the seaplane base at Borkum and there found and attacked with machine gun fire three seaplanes.

"Our fighters were engaged by heavy anti-aircraft fire, to which they replied. All our aircraft returned safely."

(A German announcement yesterday admitted the attack on the Borkum base but said the British planes dropped no bombs.)

SCHOOL TEACHER TELLS OF LOSS IN MAIL FRAUD

CINCINNATI, Nov. 29—A school teacher who invested $3,100 in cemetery lots took the witness stand today in the federal government's trial of 12 persons accused of conspiracy and using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of lots in Arlington Memorial Park.

She was Miss Sally W. Kingsley, for 37 years a teacher in South Charleston, O. Late yesterday she told the jury she surrendered her original investment for "new and different" guarantees without receiving any monetary interest or return.

Earlier, an aged practicing physician, Dr. A. C. Baker, 69, Brookville, O., related to the jurors and Federal Judge Mac Swinford how he put $21,500 into the Arlington Park on the promise that the money would be returned in two years.

Baker testified that Morton Gilbert, one of those on trial, guaranteed the investment. He explained, however, that his connection with the enterprise was more "in the nature of a loan" than anything else.

Meanwhile, government attorneys said they would vigorously investigate Gilbert's assertion that he had been "offered money" even in the courtroom—to keep my mouth shut." Gilbert was convicted in an earlier cemetery lot case and sentenced to a long term in the federal prison at Atlanta. He was brought here for the trial under heavy guard.

Other defendants include J. Stewart Hagen, Hamilton County Republican leader, and Alfred LeFeber, well known sanitary engineer.

FATE OF POLAND SPURS COUNTRY TO TAKE ACTION

centrated in the Leningrad area, Finland dispatched its latest reply to Russia today. While its contents were not revealed, it was believed that the note would prove conciliatory. While seeking to escape the fate of its little Baltic neighbors, Finland also is even more anxious to avoid the experience of Poland—another possibility that the Moscow radio has mentioned frequently.

Troops To Move

Therefore, while dispatching its note to Moscow post haste for presentation of Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, the Finnish government also ordered its troops to withdraw "some distance" from the Russo-Finnish frontier.

The controversy resulting from Finland's refusal to accede to Soviet demands for territorial concessions reached its peak after Helsingfors turned down another Russian Demand for unilateral withdrawal of Finnish troops to points some 16 miles behind the border.

It appeared that today's withdrawal would amount to nothing like 16 miles, but would be confined to perhaps a mile or less as a gesture of placate Moscow's rage.

Russia's action in denouncing the non-aggression treaty was followed by charges, broadcast by the Moscow radio, that three new "provocative" incidents had occurred along the border. These charges were formally denied by the Helsingfors government.

Further evidence of Finnish desire to soft-pedal the whole matter was an official Helsingfors denial that general mobilization had been ordered in Finland. On the contrary, the government said, a number of reservists had been released from service.

Developments in the Finnish-Soviet crisis overshadowed all events connected with the European war.

In London, however, the British government flatly denied German claims that a submarine commanded by Lieut-Commander Gunther Frien had sunk a British cruiser of the 10,000-ton London class.

In addition, the British air ministry announced, and Germany admitted, that British planes had attacked the German naval base at Borkum.

The Western Front remained quiet.

SCHOOL TEACHER TELLS OF LOSS IN MAIL FRAUD

CINCINNATI, Nov. 29—A school teacher who invested $3,100 in cemetery lots took the witness stand today in the federal government's trial of 12 persons accused of conspiracy and using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of lots in Arlington Memorial Park.

She was Miss Sally W. Kingsley, for 37 years a teacher in South Charleston, O. Late yesterday she told the jury she surrendered her original investment for "new and different" guarantees without receiving any monetary interest or return.

Earlier, an aged practicing physician, Dr. A. C. Baker, 69, Brookville, O., related to the jurors and Federal Judge Mac Swinford how he put $21,500 into the Arlington Park on the promise that the money would be returned in two years.

Baker testified that Morton Gilbert, one of those on trial, guaranteed the investment. He explained, however, that his connection with the enterprise was more "in the nature of a loan" than anything else.

Meanwhile, government attorneys said they would vigorously investigate Gilbert's assertion that he had been "offered money"—even in the courtroom—to keep my mouth shut.

Gilbert was convicted in an earlier cemetery lot case and sentenced to a long term in the federal prison at Atlanta. He was brought here for the trial under heavy guard.

Other defendants include J. Stewart Hagen, Hamilton County Republican leader, and Alfred LeFeber, well known sanitary engineer.

Ten older boys, members of the same gang, were placed on probation for a year and assessed $5.25 costs.

FATE OF POLAND SPURS COUNTRY TO TAKE ACTION

centrated in the Leningrad area, Finland dispatched its latest reply to Russia today. While its contents were not revealed, it was believed that the note would prove conciliatory. While seeking to escape the fate of its little Baltic neighbors, Finland also is even more anxious to avoid the experience of Poland—another possibility that the Moscow radio has mentioned significantly.

Troops To Move

Therefore, while dispatching its note to Moscow post haste for presentation of Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, the Finnish government also ordered its troops to withdraw "some distance" from the Russo-Finnish frontier.

The controversy resulting from Finland's refusal to accede to Soviet demands for territorial concessions reached its peak after Helsingfors turned down another Russian Demand for unilateral withdrawal of Finnish troops to points some 16 miles behind the border.

It appeared that today's withdrawal would amount to nothing like 16 miles, but would be confined to perhaps a mile or less as a gesture of placate Moscow's rage.

Russia's action in denouncing the non-aggression treaty was followed by charges, broadcast by the Moscow radio, that three new "provocative" incidents had occurred along the border. These charges were formally denied by the Helsingfors government.

Further evidence of Finnish desire to soft-pedal the whole matter was an official Helsingfors denial that general mobilization had been ordered in Finland. On the contrary, the government said, a number of reservists had been released from service.

Developments in the Finnish-Soviet crisis overshadowed all events connected with the European war.

In London, however, the British government flatly denied German claims that a submarine commanded by Lieut-Commander Gunther Prien had sunk a British cruiser of the 10,000-ton London class.

In addition, the British air ministry announced, and Germany admitted, that British planes had attacked the German naval base at Borkum.

The Western Front remained quiet.

HOLIDAY LIGHTS BEING ERECTED IN UPTOWN AREA

Christmas Trees Will Be Turned On Saturday,
Officials Say

PARADE PLAN COMPLETE

Line Of March Determined
For Santa Claus And His Retinue

Circleville's Christmas decorations, to include 80 lighted trees along the sidewalks in the downtown district, were going up Wednesday.

The trees range from seven to eight feet tall this year, larger than last year, and will have more lights. Last year two strings of lights were used on each tree. This year there will be three. Plans are to have the trees ready for lighting Saturday night.

The same plans are being followed this year on the erection of the trees. They are being placed on pipes along the sidewalk so they are high enough to be out of the way of the crowds.

Decorations at Main and Court Streets will be the same as two years ago. It is planned to have the corner decorations completed for lighting Saturday night.

Line of March Decided

The line of march for the Santa Claus parade to be held Saturday at 1 p. m. was announced Wednesday. The parade will form at the high school, go north on Court Street to Franklin Street, east on Franklin to Pickaway, north on Pickaway to Main, west on Main to Scioto, north on Scioto to Pinckney, east on Pinckney to Court and south on Court to the courthouse where Santa will have his headquarters. Treats will be given youngsters by Santa.

Santa Claus will come to Circleville about 11 a. m. and remain until 4:30 p. m. The parade will include Santa's reindeer, a Christmas queen and attendants, nine floats, 150 costumed marchers, cowboys, cowgirls, dogs, ponies, horses and sheep.

A trained horse will perform in each block throughout the downtown district and there will act as a rope spinner and Australian whip cracker.

GRAND THEATRE PLANS SHOW TO AID FIREMEN; TOY ADMITS CHILDREN

The Christmas toy campaign of Circleville firemen is due for a big boost Saturday when the Grand Theatre will hold a special show for youngsters with a new or old toy as the admission price. Broken toys will be accepted and repaired by firemen.

The special show will start at 10 a. m. Youngsters will be admitted after 9:30 o'clock. They will be shown a western feature, comedy and shorts, Manager Dick Offenbacher announced.

MONTH'S RAIN BELOW NORMAL

Farmers Report Weather
Excellent For Wheat
In District

From all indications November will end with the rainfall less than half the normal amount for the month.

Rainfall recorded for the month amounts to 1.38 inches. Normal is about three inches.

The unusual weather in November has been ideal for the wheat to prepare it for winter weather. Dry weather followed wheat seeding, delaying the growth. Rains in November followed by clear weather and sunshine boosted the growth of the wheat and has put it in good shape for cold weather.

Highest temperature recorded Tuesday was 48 degrees. Lowest recording in the night was 23 degrees.

GOVERNOR FIRM AGAINST PLEAS TO CALL SOLONS

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29—Indications were today that Governor Bricker, who held a conference yesterday with editors of Ohio metropolitan newspapers, would stand pat on his decision not to call a special relief session of the legislature. An announcement after the meeting said that the governor had heard from the editors the relief problem faced by their respective communities.

Norfolk and Western Handles Big Business

The sudden demand on the Norfolk and Western Railway to handle an unprecedented increase in freight traffic, as a result of the recent upsurge in the nation's commerce, has been met without car shortage, delay, or congestion, the company declared in a statement issued today.

The statement revealed that in October, 5,329 carloads of revenue freight were loaded on the railroad in a single day—an all-time record, and a 56 percent increase over the average day of three months before.

Five times in a few short weeks, according to the railroad, the N. & W. was called upon to "provide more equipment and service to move more coal than ever before in the history of the Norfolk and Western." In October, the N. & W. loaded more coal in one day—4,255 cars; more in one week—22,706 cars, and more in one month—97,140 cars, than in any like periods since the railway built into the coal fields 56 years ago.

The statement pointed out that "this achievement was made possible by experienced, loyal personnel; by cooperation of shippers and receivers; and by the railway's policy of expanding and improving its facilities and services in boom times and in depression. Today, the Norfolk and Western is rolling—and ready for more—with plenty of capacity in reserve."

The railroad asserted that "again, the Norfolk and Western Railway, and the other railroads of the country, have proven conclusively that they can do the nation's transportation job better than any other agency—no matter what may come—and that they are vital to the economic progress and welfare of America."

PARADE OF TOYS TO FIREMEN TOO SLOW

Very few toys have been received to date by firemen in their Christmas toy campaign. Some were received Tuesday.

Firemen request that the toys be taken to the department as early as possible so they may make the necessary repairs.

EFFORT TO FREE PIKE COUNTIANS PROVES FAILURE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—Motions to quash vote-fraud informations against three Pike County officials and 12 other county residents have been overruled, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert revealed today.

Common Pleas Judge Fred H. Wolf, of Wauseon, who is sitting on the Pike County bench in place of Judge Jacob Davis made the ruling. He held that the attorney general had complied with all requirements in filing the informations. Defense counsel had argued that Herbert did not have the authority to file the informations and that such informations must be supported by sworn affidavits.

The railroad asserted that "again, the Norfolk and Western Railway, and the other railroads of the country, have proven conclusively that they can do the nation's transportation job better than any other agency—no matter what may come—and that they are vital to the economic progress and welfare of America."

AN IMAGINATIVE JUDGE

ONE of the most curious cases in legal history is that of a municipal judge in Cleveland. The local bar association has brought court proceedings against him for disbarment, alleging misconduct and unprofessional behavior. There are various accusations, but the most interesting of them, and apparently the one most offending his professional brethren, is that he "submitted a mythical legal opinion to the Ohio Law Reporter."

The defendant has admitted writing and publishing a legal opinion on a lawsuit which never occurred, in which the names, dates, evidence, principles at issue and the legal opinion rendered are alleged by the Bar Association to have been purely imaginary. The case, as reported in the state organ of the Ohio Bar, was so plausible that for a while it seems to have deceived everybody. It might have got into the law books and become immortal in law libraries.

When more realistic lawyers learned the actual nature of the case, they got mad and started action. Whether it was meant as a practical joke or was a wilful attempt to deceive is not clear.

Here is ground on which mere laymen must tread softly. But it certainly seems as if there must be a place, either within the law or outside of it, for a man with such creative imagination and what might be called factual fearlessness.

TRAINING FOR WORK

ONE of the serious effects of the enforced idleness of the depression period is the loss of skill suffered by former workers and the failure of young people reaching job age to acquire special skills. In every business pick-up of recent years a shortage of skilled workers has developed quickly in some communities and some industries.

The state of Connecticut is setting out now to do something about this for its own people. Governor Baldwin announces a job-training program for the unemployed. The plan worked out is the result of weeks of study and discussion on the part of business men, industrial leaders and government officials.

The program is designed particularly for young men and women from 16 to 25 who are not only jobless but unskilled, untrained and without work experience. But former workers also will be given a chance to brush up on lost skills. All who complete the 200-hour course of intensive training for certain kinds of work will be helped to obtain prompt employment. The program will be tried first in Hartford, but other communities are arranging for similar classes.

NAVY'S ENGINEERS SUBORDINATE

WASHINGTON—If Senators Wheeler and Vandenberg really investigate the faulty construction of the Navy's brand new warships, they will find a lot of interesting things which the public and Congress never has heard about.

They will find, for instance, a sort of social registry within the Bureau of "Engineering" and of "Construction and Repair" whereby 110 commissioned officers rule the roost. Under them, and distinctly subordinate regarding both authority and social position, are the civilian naval architects and engineers. Chief difference is that one group went to Annapolis and the other did not.

The civilian naval architects are among the best in the country, some of their names are well-known throughout the ship-building industry. And in previous years some of these civilians used to be in charge of technical sections. Recently, however, more and more Annapolis graduates have come ashore to supersede them.

No one in the Navy is shouting about it, but the flaws just discovered in the new destroyers were suspected by these civilian architects and engineers. The private shipbuilders also questioned the destroyers' designs, fearing they would be top-heavy. However, the 110 commissioned officers are not accustomed to having their word challenged, and their instructions were carried out.

RESULT: About 20 of the 28 new destroyers will have to have their keels leaded to keep them from rolling over in the water.

WHAT PRICE SHIPS?

Another point which the Senate may want to investigate is the high cost of ship-building. Twenty years ago, just at the end of the World War, a destroyer cost $900,000 to $1,000,000. Since 1919, the cost of labor and building materials has gone down, not up. Yet the Navy is now paying $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 for its destroyers. The new destroyers are bigger and improved. But this does not account for all the tremendous boost in price.

The price of a battleship also has mounted, so that one battleship now costs as much as the entire Rockefeller Radio City in New York.

NOTE—Acting Naval Secretary Edison is doing his best to bring greater efficiency to the Navy, and has appointed two good men, Admirals A. H. Van Keuren and S. M. Robinson in charge of Construction and Repair and the Bureau of Engineering. Aside from three men at the top, however, there has been practically no change among the 110 other commissioned officers who have been planning new U. S. warships. They remain on the job despite their mistakes.

Varying Opinions On Pulp Stones

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What are pulp stones in the teeth? How dangerous are they? What should be done about them?

Pulp stones are found in the nerve of the tooth. They vary in size, shape and number. In some cases there is one small stone, replacing almost the entire nerve, and in others there may be a considerable number of small stones.

Some research workers insist that pulp stones are the result of infection in the tooth nerve. Others think they are the result of irritation in the form of decay, heat and cold shocks, or pyorrhea. They are usually discovered accidentally on x-ray examination. They do not al-

Hospital Changes Due to the War

I am in receipt of a report which shows the changes that are made in medical care as a result of the war. The London hospitals have been cleared as far as possible of ordinary patients in order to provide accommodations for the large number of casualties expected. They only maintain about 20 per cent of their accommodations for cases of urgent illness, and only cases from the district in which the hospital is situated are admitted. Certain kinds of medical service are entirely curtailed; the use of radium is an example. Most of the national stock of radium has been buried at the foot of a 50-foot hole especially drilled for use in war time. The radium and its containers are in a steel cylinder, being before being lowered, was loaded at the well head by an operator who stood for protection behind a thick block of lead. For the present, high voltage x-ray treatment will be used instead of radium treatment, wherever possible.

Vegetables and Milk for Reducing

Is a vegetable and milk diet good for reducing?

The vegetable and milk diet for reducing is by no means new. As long as a hundred years ago it was known that vegetables and milk constituted a good reduction diet. No more graphic description of the difficulties under which overweight people suffer and the relief obtained upon losing weight can be found than the experience of Dr. George Cheyne as recorded in the European Magazine of 1824:

"I wish corpulent people no diseases for their cure; still less can I recommend medicines to them. Dr. Fothergill observes, that a strict adherence to vegetable diet reduces exuberant fat more certainly than any other means that he knows, and Dr. Cheyne furnished, in his own person, an extraordinary instance of its efficacy. SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne goes to the ancestral home near Baltimore, maintained in luxury by her aunt and uncle.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

FOR NEARLY a fortnight Fabienne had been in Maryland. It was the way it always was when she was there. Long, cool, sweet sleep. Bright mornings. Molly fussing over her, brushing her corn-silk hair, lovingly caring for her clothes. Dance frocks in the scented closet. Uncle Mark and Aunt Edna waiting up for her whatever hour she came in. Cookies and milk at three o'clock in the morning in front of the fire in the library or in Uncle Mark's study. Gossip about the party.

The dances. The same faces. The high-ceilinged rooms and the colored boys playing waltzes back of the potted palms. Miss Kate and Miss Viola Lee in their lavender laces and painted shawls. The Gossling girls still beau snatching. The elderly "eligible bachelor" who had courted her mother and was paying the same compliments to her. The laden banquet boards and the rich buffets. The big, pale pink hams and hot breads. The wine cups and steaming toddies. The baked oysters and fried chicken. The tinkling laughter and snored voices. The social south that never changed. Those were her nights, one after another.

There were the days. The morning rides—hard, fast riding over swept turf, over the first light snow, for now it was December. Rides on fresh mornings that crackled with energy and ended in nothingness.

Back to Nicky's or Jane's or someone else's and a highball before lunch. Lunch that lasted into the afternoon hours. Home to change, or on to someone else's house in riding clothes for cocktails and talk about horses or other people. And beaux, young and old, for, seemingly, no man in her set in that part of the country did any work.

The days and the nights with the sameness and gaiety that Fabienne felt must be forced inasmuch as it had never changed, began to pall upon her and restlessness to which she had never before been prey, fell upon her.

She took to prowling the lanes on foot, avoiding the telephone, finding herself in the grip of a deadly ennui.

Sometimes, looking at the sky and noting the shifting light that marked the hour, pictures came to her.

Now it is four o'clock. The children's games are noisy in the west wing of Willoughby house. Her own little class would be rehearsing the play she had directed.

Six o'clock. Another girl would be clearing the desk in the children's clinic. Ellen Chapman, thinking of her evening date with Bill Mallory, everywhere at once. Busy, happy, working.

But Ellen Chapman wouldn't be called for in a Rolls tomorrow. El wouldn't have a new white and silver gown to wear at a dance in a ballroom that had seen three presidents dancing there.

Fabienne was putting on the white and silver gown when Molly brought up the evening mail.

She pulled the dress over her head and, without waiting to hook it, sat on one of Fabienne de Courcy's little spindle-legged chairs and ran through the pile of letters.

There was one from Paris. That would be from Gertrude.

Fabienne slit the tissue-thin envelope. Her mother's neat, small handwriting covered four sheets.

"... I don't think I shall come over for Christmas, after all," Gertrude wrote. "I've been invited to Nice with some amusing people. And it isn't as if you were all children and needed me to have a happy holiday. The twins"—the twins had been put in school in Switzerland—"are reluctant to miss the winter sports and wish to stay on at school. Dick writes me that he is going to fly to California for the holidays. Do you think he is interested in the Haviland girl? I do hope so. Her family, you know, own most of the western railroads. Dick has got to make a good marriage now that he hasn't any money outside of the pitiful income from his trust fund. I do worry about my children."

Fabienne sniffed indelicately and continued her reading:

"I'm so happy that you have decided to give up that odious work. I can't tell you how you hurt me doing that, Fabienne; but I forgive you now and know that you'd come to your senses. I should have insisted on your coming to Paris with me, but I know that you are happier in Maryland. And I also know, whether you realize it yet or not, that you are only happy with Nicky. You've practically spent your lives together, darling, and that counts for a great deal. I've often thought that the reason why my two marriages were so disastrous was that I didn't know either of my husbands long enough before we were married. I always married for love that was nothing more than infatuation. I'm afraid that's what you're looking for. But it is so wrong—when you have dear, devoted Nicky already waiting for you."

Fabienne thrust the letter aside and screamed, "Molly! Hook this thing up. I'm late enough now."

Molly said, "You ain't read all your letters, Miss Fabienne."

"I've read enough. Don't forget my carriage boots. It's cold tonight."

Molly held a long wrap for her to slip into and Fabienne looked at herself a long time in the pier glass. Then she unbuttoned the sheaf of white camellias from her shoulder and threw them on the bed beside the letters with a gesture of distaste and went out of the room and down to wait, devoted Nicky who was waiting for her with the inevitable highball glass in his hand.

The flowers were gone and the bed neatly turned down when she returned to her room much later that night.

The letters she had not opened were on the bed table beside the bowl of fruit Molly had placed there.

There was a long white envelope with a New York postmark and her name typed on it. Curious, she slit it and pulled out three large sheets of paper. The first page contained a typewritten note from Ellen. It was the first Ellen had sent her.

The other pages contained signatures scrawled in school children's writing.

Fabienne's eyes lighted as she read rapidly:

"Dear Fabienne," Ellen wrote, "We hope this letter will not be an interruption. It is an invitation from all of us, most earnestly urged by those whose names you will find here. The play—your play—as you know, is to be presented on Saturday afternoon and it is our hope (a forlorn one, perhaps) that you can be our guest of honor. I thought perhaps you might like to send a telegram. It would mean so much to the children. Not as much, of course, as your presence, but I do understand it and hope you are having a glorious time. We all miss you very much, and I miss you particularly. If you are ever to be in New York, I hope that you will be my guest. So much has happened at Willoughby house that I know you'd like to hear about! Affectionately, Ellen."

Fabienne read the names written in pencil: Wolesjki, Tomassino, Kelly, Wong, Geradi, Svenson. She could see them all. Little red heads, tow heads, black heads. Little slavic, latin and oriental faces. The darlings!

What a softie she was to feel that way! How coolly amused Nicky would be.

Saturday was the day of the play. Saturday was also the day the Hendersons were giving their house warming. She must have Molly take in the seams of her sequin jacket. It was a little too loose and she meant to look her smartest for that party.

There were two things she must do that next morning! Speak to Molly about the jacket and send a nice, long telegram to Ellen for the children, wishing them success, telling them she wished she could be with them.

At breakfast she told Molly about the sequin jacket. Then she got out Edna's old roadster and drove down to the telegraph office in the village. On the way she composed the telegram, but the words fled from her when she went to put them on paper. And she found herself writing:

WILL ACCEPT INVITATION WITH PLEASURE. ARRIVING NEW YORK SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

SENATOR ALVA B. ADAMS

of Colorado is not the only solon who has expressed himself in favor of closer congressional control over government expenditures. However, he's a Democrat, which adds somewhat to the significance of his implied suggestion that maybe quite a few of our national executive departments and other agencies have been a bit excessive in their demands for public money. Republican lawmakers are expected to be critical of a Democratic administration's spending. It counts more when a Democratic legislator hints that he thinks there's been extravagance on the part of a Democratic executive regime.

When an executive outfit has calculated how much it needs to carry it through an ensuing fiscal year it turns its figures over to the budget bureau. The budget bureau, in turn, having assembled all these estimates, refers them to congress, requesting corresponding appropriations.

Suppose the navy department, illustratively, makes an application for a financial allowance. It's a department which is answerable directly to the White House. Therefore it's presumable that its plea has presidential indorsement. The budget bureau likewise is of presidential creation; it isn't a bit likely to find much fault with what the White House, inferentially, has recommended. So, in that form, the application goes to congress.

It's referred to the senate and house naval affairs committees. The navy naturally wants all the dough it can get. The budget bureau acquiesces. The congressional committees also consist of navy enthusiasts.

CONGRESS DOESN'T KNOW

Thus the item gets to congress substantially as originally called for by the navy department.

The rank-and-file of congressmen, not knowing anything about the subject, vote as per the findings of the supposed experts. It's the same way relative to all the other executive items.

To be sure, some congressmen have said that they believed various departments were putting their demands too high. They've proposed a general reduction of, say, 10 percent in all sought-for appropriations.

This wouldn't be fair, though, either.

Surmise that the navy department has made a rip-smorting high request, in comparison with a quite reasonable departmental request.

It wouldn't be on the level to cut the war department at the same rate as the navy.

All the departments and miscellaneous agencies are mixed up in the same fashion.

NAVY'S ENGINEERS SUBORDINATE

WASHINGTON—If Senators Wheeler and Vandenberg really investigate the faulty construction of the Navy's brand new warships, they will find a lot of interesting things which the public and Congress never has heard about.

They will find, for instance, a sort of social registry within the Bureaus of "Engineering" and of "Construction and Repair" whereby 110 commissioned officers rule the roost. WHAT PRICE SHIPS?

Another point which the Senate may want to investigate is the high cost of ship-building. Twenty years ago, just at the end of the World War, a destroyer cost $900,000 to $1,000,000. Since 1919, the cost of labor and building materials has gone down, not up. Yet the Navy is now paying $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 for its destroyers. The new destroyers are bigger and improved. But this does not account for all the tremendous boost in price.

The price of a battleship also has mounted, so that one battleship now costs as much as the entire Rockefeller Radio City in New York.

He was obliged to have the whole side of his chariot made open to admit him; and he grew short-breathed, lethargic, nervous, and scorbutic, so that his life became an intolerable burden. In this deplorable condition, after trying in vain all the power of medicine, he resolved to confine himself to a milk and vegetable diet, the good effect of which quickly appeared. His size was reduced almost to a third, and he recovered his strength, activity, and cheerfulness, with the perfect use of all his faculties."

Fabienné was putting on the white and silver gown when Molly brought up the evening mail.

She pulled the dress over her head and, without waiting to hook it, sat on one of Fabienné de Courcy's little spindle-legged chairs and ran through the pile of letters.

There was one from Paris. That would be from Gertrude. Fabienné slit the tissue-thin envelope. Her mother's neat, small handwriting covered four sheets.

"... I don't think I shall come over for Christmas, after all," Gertrude wrote. "I've been invited to Nice with some amusing people. And it isn't as if you were all children and needed me to have a happy holiday. The twins"—the twins had been put in school in Switzerland—"are reluctant to miss the winter sports and wish to stay on at school. Dick writes me that he is going to fly to California for the holidays. Do you think he is interested in the Haviland girl? I do hope so. Her family, you know, own most of the western railroads. Dick has got to make a good marriage now that he hasn't any money outside of the pitiful income from his trust fund. I do worry about my children."

There were the morning rides, hard and fast.

Fabienné sniffed indelicately and continued her reading: "I'm so happy that you have decided to give up that odious work. I can't tell you how you hurt me doing that, Fabienne; but I forgive you now and knew that you'd come to your senses. I should have insisted on your coming to Paris with me, but I know that you are happier in Maryland. And I also know, whether you realize it yet or not, that you are only happy with Nicky. You've practically spent your lives together, darling, and that counts for a great deal. I've often thought that the reason why my two marriages were so disastrous was that I didn't know either of my husbands long enough before we were married. I always married for love that was nothing more than infatuation. I'm afraid that's what you're looking for. But it is so wrong—when you have dear, devoted Nicky already waiting for you."

Fabienné thrust the letter aside and screamed, "Molly! Hook this thing up. I'm late enough now."

Molly said, "You ain't read all your letters, Miss Fabienne."

"I've read enough. Don't forget my carriage boots. It's cold tonight."

Molly held a long wrap for her to slip into and Fabienne looked at herself a long time in the pier glass. Then she unpinned the sheaf of white camellias from her shoulder and threw them on the bed beside the letters with a gesture of distaste and went out of the room and down to dear, devoted Nicky who was waiting for her with the inevitable highball glass in his hand.

The flowers were gone and the bed neatly turned down when she returned to her room much later that night.

The letters she had not opened were on the bed table beside the bowl of fruit Molly had placed there.

There was a long white envelope with a New York postmark and her name typed on it. Curious, she slit it and pulled out three large sheets of paper. The first page contained a typewritten note from Ellen. It was the first Ellen had sent her.

The other pages contained signatures scrawled in school children's writing.

Fabienné's eyes lighted as she read rapidly: "Dear Fabienne," Ellen wrote, "We hope this letter will not be an interruption. It is an invitation from all of us, most earnestly urged by those whose names you will find here. The play—your play—as you know, is to be presented on Saturday afternoon and it is our hope (a forlorn one, perhaps) that you can be our guest of honor. I thought perhaps you might like to send a telegram. It would mean so much to the children. Not as much, of course, as your presence, but I do understand and hope you are having a glorious time. We all miss you very much, and I miss you particularly. If you are ever to be in New York, I hope that you will be my guest. So much has happened at Willoughby house that I know you'd like to hear about! Affectionately, Ellen."

Fabienné read the names written in pencil: Wojeski, Tomassino, Kelly, Wong, Geradi, Svenson. She could see them all. Little red heads, tow heads, black heads. Little slavic, latin and oriental faces. The darlings!

What a softie she was to feel that way! How coolly amused Nicky would be.

Saturday was the day of the play. Saturday was also the day the Hendersons were giving their house warming. She must have Molly take in the seams of her sequin jacket. It was a little too loose and she meant to look her smartest for that party.

There were two things she must do that next morning! Speak to Molly about the jacket and send a nice, long telegram to Ellen for the children, wishing them success, telling them she wished she could be with them.

At breakfast she told Molly about the sequin jacket. Then she got out Edna's old roadster and drove down to the telegraph office in the village. On the way she composed the telegram, but the words fled from her when she went to put them on paper. And she found herself writing:

WILL ACCEPT INVITATION WITH PLEASURE. ARRIVING NEW YORK SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR ALVA B. ADAMS of Colorado is not the only solon who has expressed himself in favor of closer congressional control over government expenditures. However, he's a Democrat, which adds somewhat to the significance of his implied suggestion that maybe quite a few of our national executive departments and other agencies have been a bit excessive in their demands for public money. Republican lawmakers are expected to be critical of a Democratic administration's spending. It counts more when a Democratic legislator hints that he thinks there's been extravagance on the part of a Democratic executive regime.

When an executive outfit has calculated how much it needs to carry it through an ensuing fiscal year it turns its figures over to the budget bureau. The budget bureau, in turn, having assembled all these estimates, refers them to congress, requesting corresponding appropriations.

Suppose the navy department, illustratively, makes an application for a financial allowance. It's a department which is answerable directly to the White House. Therefore it's presumable that its plea has presidential indorsement. The budget bureau likewise is of presidential creation; it isn't a bit likely to find much fault with what the White House, inferentially, has recommended. So, in that form, the application goes to congress.

It's referred to the senate and house naval affairs committees. The navy naturally wants all the dough it can get. The budget bureau acquiesces. The congressional committees also consist of navy enthusiasts.

CONGRESS DOESN'T KNOW Thus the item gets to congress substantially as originally called for by the navy department.

The rank-and-file of congressmen, not knowing anything about the subject, vote as per the findings of the supposed experts. It's the same way relative to all the other executive items.

To be sure, some congressmen have said that they believed various departments were putting their demands too high. They've proposed a general reduction of, say, 10 percent in all sought-for appropriations. This wouldn't be fair, though, either.

Surmise that the navy department has made a rip-snorting high request, in comparison with a quite reasonable departmental request.

It wouldn't be on the level to cut the war department at the same rate as the navy.

All the departments and miscellaneous agencies are mixed up in the same fashion.

CONGRESS VERSUS PRESIDENT

The theory, then, as urged by Senator Adams, is for congress to set up a committee of the members of both houses to consider ALL proposed expenditures of ANY executive origin.

It should go without saying that this notion is 100 percent contra-White House wishes.

But it has the support of all Republicans and all anti-Rooseveltian Democrats. It'll be a red-hot controversy when congress meets early in 1940.

It can't be headed off. There's too much talk about governmental spending.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE It was a movement when the general accounting office was created, right after the World War.

The idea then was to muzzle federal spending. It didn't work after the New Deal came in.

On the contrary, federal spending became rampant.

You heard a lot about the general accounting office when its career was young. Now you hear about as much about it as you do about the fisheries bureau of the agricultural department.

Even the fisheries bureau is accused of asking an excessive allowance.

To behold is not necessarily to observe, and the power of comparing and combining is only to be obtained by education. It is much to be regretted that habits of exact observation are not cultivated in our schools; to this deficiency may be traced much of the fallacious reasoning and the false philosophy which prevails.—W. Humboldt.

Pickaway PTA
Approximately 100 were present for the meeting of Pickaway Parent-Teacher association Tuesday, an interesting program on the theme, "Sing a Song of Sixpence", being presented. The topic dealt with the child's budget and particularly discussed how much a child should have of the family income.

The topic was based on a study course article in the National Parent-Teacher magazine which Mrs. Ralph Head read and discussed in opening the program.

G. D. Bradley, vocational teacher of the school, told of his experiences with children in project work and how they obtained the money necessary to carry on in their special work.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, discussed the same subject, his topic being, "The Child's Budget". In his talk he quoted many plain statements of noted financiers. He concluded with the thought that no child should put the acquisition of money ahead of character.

George Wilson, Evelyn Pierce and Betty Duvall sang one trio number with Miss Jane McWhirter at the piano.

Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by the social committee headed by Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wilson.

The lovely decorations of the tables were a reminder of the approaching holiday season. Flat arrangements of evergreen twigs extended the length of the tables, inter-twined of red celophane and red candles placed at intervals completing the colorful setting.

During the business hour in charge of Mrs. E. E. Porter, the welfare committee through its chairman, Mrs. Harry Wright, announced plans for the year. Notes from the fall PTA conference in Columbus were given by Mrs.

TROPHY FOR OUTSTANDING WORK GOES TO KINNICK

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—The Heisman Memorial trophy, awarded annually to the season's outstanding college football player, will go this year to Iowa's sensational back, Nile Clark Kinnick, Jr.

Kinnick polled 651 points in a national-wide vote of sports writers and broadcasters, it was announced today. Next came Michigan's Tom Harmon and then, in order, Missouri's Paul Christman and Tennessee's George Cafego.

The trophy will be presented to Kinnick at the Downtown Athletic Club on Dec. 6.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, November 29 AFFAIRS move at a highly-accelerated pace on this day under the impulse of greatly-stimulated forces and faculties. Particularly are new projects and interests advanced under the high pressure of progressive planetary urges. It is a time to move forward with initiative, courage and by means of the keen impetus of practically constructive abilities and talents. Group action in such enterprise seems encouraged. But do not overdo through excessive zeal or wilfulness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of definite accomplishment, especially in the direction of putting over new propositions or gaining important objectives, in which some manner of group co-operation may be advantageous. The energies and initiative will be spurred to high tension, but be careful not to overdo with enthusiasm, reckless determination or impetuosity.

A child born on this day may have excellent ability for fine creative work of a practical and dependable nature. These it may develop with courage, determination and headstrongness, the latter to a degree of obstinacy.

HARMON RATES BIG TEN HONOR

Michigan Star Ahead In Statistical Check Up Of Year's Work

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—Tommy Harmon of Michigan, who already has been flooded with honors from Big Ten football observers, today received one last pat on the back from the conference statisticians.

The fellows who make figures their business showed that Harmon not only was the Big Ten's individual scoring leader, but he also led all the circuit's players in every offensive category save one.

Terrible Tommy competed in only five conference games as compared to the six games played by most of his competitors for individual honors. Nevertheless, he massed a total of 61 points against the 33 of Northwestern's Don Clawson, the runner-up.

Harmon's average gain from rushing per game was $8.81 yards. He toted the ball 76 times for a net gain of 444 yards and an average per rush of 5.84. Hal Van Every of Minnesota carried the ball 106 times for a net gain of 452 yards, an average per game of 75.3 yards. Per carry, Van Every averaged 4.25 yards. George Paskvan, Wisconsin's line-busting fullback, was in third place, carrying the ball 117 times for a net gain of 429 yards.

Hurling Hal Hursh of Indiana led the Big Ten aerial artists with an average net gain per game of 118.4 yards. He attempted 56 passes, completed 27, for a net gain of 592 yards. Iowa's Nile Kinnick took second honors with a per game average of 90.6 yards. The Hawkeye iron man threw 82 passes and connected with 27 for a total gain of 544 yards.

Harmon, however, was not edged out from this department. The Wolverine halfback finished third among the passers, throwing 57 aeriels and completing 27 for a net gain of 394 yards and a per game average of 7.8 yards.

Combining gains from rushing and passing, Harmon led all the rest of the conference backs by a huge margin with a per game average of 167.6 yards. Kinnick, although his rushing average was but 37.1 yards per game, rests in second place by virtue of his aerial accuracy with a per game average of 127.8. Hursh, whose per game rushing average was a neat minus three yards, nevertheless thrust his way into third place with an average gain per game of 117.8 yards.

TRAUTMAN NAMES THREE COLLEGIANS AS UMPIRES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29 — Signing of three new arbiters today completed the roster of umpires for the American Association for the 1940 season, President George Trautman announced.

The three new callers are John "Bo" Molenda, Los Angeles; Dan P. Tahan, Cincinnati, and Forrest "Frosty" Peters, Billings, Mont. All are college graduates. Curiously, all are football players of note. Molenda serves as coach for the New York Giants professional football team; Tahan won three football letters at Xavier University, while "Frosty" Peters will be remembered as one of the greatest gridirers in the history of the University of Illinois.

WILDCATS OPEN SEASON WITH SYRACUSE JOUST

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 29 — Eastern football fans will get an early look at a Big Ten eleven next year it was revealed today with publication of Northwestern's 1940 grid schedule. The Wildcats' opening game will be against Syracuse at Syracuse, N. Y., on October 5.

SOUTHERN CAL DRILLS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29—Although Saturday's game with the Washington Huskies was rated by the experts as a pushover for the Trojans of U. S. C., Coach Howard Jones decided to take no chances today on letting his squad get over-confident. He planned on another stiff workout after putting the train-weary team through a two-hour grind yesterday.

TROPHY FOR OUTSTANDING WORK GOES TO KINNICK

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—The Heisman Memorial trophy, awarded annually to the season's outstanding college football player, will go this year to Iowa's sensational back, Nile Clark Kinnick, Jr.

Kinnick polled 651 points in a national-wide vote of sports writers and broadcasters, it was announced today. Next came Michigan's Tom Harmon and then, in order, Missouri's Paul Christman and Tennessee's George Cafego.

The trophy will be presented to Kinnick at the Downtown Athletic Club on Dec. 6.

For Wednesday, November 29 AFFAIRS move at a highly-accelerated pace on this day under the impulse of greatly-stimulated forces and faculties. Particularly are new projects and interests advanced under the high pressure of progressive planetary urges. It is a time to move forward with initiative, courage and by means of the keen impetus of practically constructive abilities and talents. Group action in such enterprise seems encouraged. But do not overdo through excessive zeal or wilfulness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of definite accomplishment, especially in the direction of putting over new propositions or gaining important objectives, in which some manner of group co-operation may be advantageous. The energies and initiative will be spurred to high tension, but be careful not to overdo with enthusiasm, reckless determination or impetuosity.

A child born on this day may have excellent ability for fine creative work of a practical and dependable nature. These it may develop with courage, determination and headstrongness, the latter to a degree of obstinacy.

Only other non-conference team on Northwestern's schedule will be Ohio State, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan.

SOUTHERN CAL DRILLS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29—Although Saturday's game with the Washington Huskies was rated by the experts as a pushover for the Trojans of U. S. HARMON RATES BIG TEN HONOR

Michigan Star Ahead In Statistical Check Up Of Year's Work

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—Tommy Harmon of Michigan, who already has been flooded with honors from Big Ten football observers, today received one last pat on the back from the conference statisticians.

The fellows who make figures their business showed that Harmon not only was the Big Ten's individual scoring leader, but he also led all the circuit's players in every offensive category save one.

Terrible Tommy completed in only five conference games as compared to the six games played by most of his competitors for individual honors. Nevertheless, he massed a total of 61 points against the 33 of Northwestern's Don Clawson, the runner-up.

Harmon's average gain from rushing per game was 88.81 yards. He toted the ball 76 times for a net gain of 444 yards and an average per rush of 5.84. Hal Van Every of Minnesota carried the ball 106 times for a net gain of 452 yards, an average per game of 75.3 yards. Per carry, Van Every averaged 4.25 yards. George Paskvan, Wisconsin's line-busting fullback, was in third place, carrying the ball 117 times for a net gain of 429 yards.

Hurling Hal Hursh of Indiana led the Big Ten aerial artists with an average net gain per game of 118.4 yards. He attempted 56 passes, completed 27, for a net gain of 592 yards. Iowa's Nile Kinnick took second honors with a per game average of 90.6 yards. The Hawkeye iron man threw 82 passes and connected with 27 for a total gain of 544 yards.

Harmon, however, was not edged out from this department. The Wolverine halfback finished third among the passers, throwing 57 airds and completing 27 for a net gain of 394 yards and a per game average of 78.8 yards.

Combining gains from rushing and passing, Harmon led all the rest of the conference backs by a huge margin with a per game average of 167.6 yards. Kinnick, although his rushing average was but 37.1 yards per game, rests in second place by virtue of his aerial accuracy with a per game average of 127.8. Hursh, whose per game rushing average was a neat minus three yards, nevertheless threw his way into third place with an average gain per game of 117.8 yards.

TRAUTMAN NAMES THREE COLLEGIANS AS UMPIRES

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29 — Signing of three new arbiters today completed the roster of umpires for the American Association for the 1940 season, President George Trautman announced.

The three new callers are John "Bo" Molenda, Los Angeles; Dan P. Tahan, Cincinnati; and Forrest "Frosty" Peters, Billings, Mont. All are college graduates.

Curiously, all are football players of note. Molenda serves as coach for the New York Giants professional football team; Tahan won three football letters at Xavier University, while "Frosty" Peters will be remembered as one of the greatest gridirers in the history of the University of Illinois.

TAX DELINQUENCY IN PICKAWAY COUNTY AT LOWEST MARK SINCE 1932

AUDITOR SHOWS BIG REDUCTION IN FOUR YEARS

Authorities Attribute Drop To Fact That List Of Land In Default Is Printed

1933 FIGURE IS HIGHEST

1913 Report Disclosed Only $2,563 On Books Not Paid By Residents

During the four year period from 1934 to 1938 delinquent taxes in Pickaway County were reduced $89,161 or 46 percent.

This information is revealed in a report received by Auditor Forrest Short from the State Delinquent Tax Commission of which Mr. Short is secretary.

Delinquent taxes in 1934 amounted to $193,477 while in 1938 they were listed at $104,316. The tax delinquency in 1938 is the lowest since 1932, the state report shows.

The report shows delinquent tax listings in the county since 1913 when they totaled $2,563. From 1913 until 1933 the delinquent taxes in the county increased annually. After 1933 there has been a steady drop. Highest listing was in 1933 with $202,809 recorded in delinquent taxes.

The listings for various years include: 1917, $8,356; 1920, $13,878; 1925, $24,219; 1928, $36,165; 1929, $46,557; 1930, $61,436; 1931, $93,590; 1932, $145,299; 1933, $202,809; 1934, $193,477; 1935, $159,460; 1936, $141,292; 1937, $121,229 and 1938, $104,316.

The steady drop in delinquent taxes in recent years is attributed to a large extent to the delinquent list being advertised, authorities say. Many persons settled their delinquent taxes to prevent their properties being listed as delinquent.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

Job of reporting the Dutch crisis to Roosevelt, is famous as one of the most quick-tempered men in the diplomatic service.

Some time ago, he was blowing off steam to the under secretary of the Dutch foreign office, who, after listening good-naturedly, remarked: "Do you always get as mad about everything as you do about this?"

Gordon, not knowing whether to be sore or not, finally sputtered: "No. My wife always tells me not to get mad. And I try terribly hard not to. But—oh well, here I am again."

All signs point to the prospect of Jimmy Cromwell being the next Senator from New Jersey. Jimmy, in case you don't remember him, is the husband of Doris Duke, inheritor of the Duke tobacco fortune and probably the richest woman in the world.

Jimmy Cromwell doesn't entirely deserve to be identified merely as Doris' husband, because he is something of a person in his own right, being the son of Mrs. Edward Stotesbury, and having a better-than-average quota of public spirit.

Also Jimmy has written a book. And it was this book which completely upset his senatorial ambitions in 1938. At that time, Mayor Frank Hague, Democratic boss of New Jersey and Jimmy's political impresario, had him all set to run for the Senate. Then suddenly, Hague learned about the book.

Mayor Hague has nothing against literature, and has even learned to tolerate CIO leaflets distributed in Jersey City. But Jimmy Cromwell's book was dynamite.

In it he advocated a sales tax and also birth control. Both are political poison. So, much to Hague's painful regret at having to give up such a lush campaign pool, he had to break the bad news to Jimmy that he was "out" as a candidate.

But now Hague and his lieutenants figure that by 1940 the ill-omened book will have been forgotten and that with the Duke fortune behind him, Jimmy is just the man to challenge multi-millionaire Republican Senator W. Warren Barbour. A battle of millionaires is sweet music to the Hague machine. The pickings have been none too lush in recent years, and some Hague followers are confidently expecting Jimmy to gig in "250 grand."

GROOMING CROMWELL

Meanwhile, under Hague's expert guidance, Jimmy is being built up as a popular candidate.

At the Hyde Park cornerstone ceremonies, he accompanied Hague and mixed genially with the throng—a special attention being given to newsmen. Soon, according to the inside word, just the right kind of a forum will be found for him to make just the right kind of a speech.

Also the Cromwells will not go to their newly-built Hawaiian palace this winter, but will remain at their million dollar estate near

Somerville, N. J., where political wheels already are turning. Local jobless have been put to work on various conservation projects which Jimmy has dubbed the DDWA—Doris Duke Works Administration.

The ornate Somerville estate, with its vast lawns, wondrous gardens, ponds and pools made a deep impression on Mayor Hague during a recent visit there with Governor Harry Moore, another of his proteges. After a jount about the place, Hague turned to Moore and remarked in an awed voice: "Boy, what a place for a clam-bake!"

MERRY GO ROUND

Also on Mayor Hague's list of super-respectable New Jersey candidates is Acting Naval Secretary Charles Edison. However, Edison is not leaving the Navy yet—though he is interested in the governorship. . . . On Secretary Hull's Georgia holiday, his two sport recreations were playing croquet and golf putting. Mrs. Hull was his only partner. . . . A letter addressed to the "Fur Department" Washington, D. C., was delivered to the State Department. The writer wanted to know about the silver fox industry.

TWO UNHURT AS PLANE CRASHES IN FARM FIELD

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29—Lieut. L. W. Hawes, an instructor at the U. S. Navy training school at Pensacola, Fla., and Ensign Page Smith told today how they narrowly escaped death when their plane crashed in a pasture field in Clinton County.

Lieutenant Hawes and Smith escaped with cuts and bruises but the naval land plane they were flying was wrecked. They were en route from Nashville, Tenn., to Columbus.

LEGION POST EXPECTING CROWD FRIDAY EVENING

Members of Howard Hall Post, American Legion, expect a huge crowd in Memorial Hall Friday night for Million Dollar Night.

In addition to a door prize and a grand prize there will be numerous merchandise prizes awarded throughout the evening. Those attending use stage money to participate in the various concessions. The grand prize is awarded the person with the largest "bankroll" at the close of the entertainment.

Funds obtained from Million Dollar Night will be donated by the American Legion to the Christmas program sponsored by Circleville merchants.

Thyssen, Hitler's original financial backer, has to flee to Switzerland. Wonder if he thinks he got his money's worth.

ROSEMARY LANE

Rosemary Lane, motion picture star whose latest picture is "The Return of Dr. X," will headline George Jessel's "Celebrity Program" over the NBC-Red network Friday, Dec. 1, at 9:30 p. m. Others to be heard are Parkyakarkus, the Greek dialectician; Arthur William Brown, popular writer and illustrator, and Max Baerach, authority on furs. Music is under the baton of Peter Van Steeden with vocals by the Merry Maes.

FARM FAMILIES AT CONVENTION

Enactment Of Ohio Income Tax To Be Urged By Rural Delegates

Dozens of Pickaway countians were in Columbus Wednesday attending the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The meeting closes Thursday afternoon.

Pickaway County's delegates to the meeting are Homer Reber, Walnut Township, and T. M. Glick, Circleville Township. James Swearingen and S. B. Chambers, both of Circleville, are alternates.

A group of 30 from the county will take part in the 1,000 voice chorus to sing at the session Wednesday evening in Columbus auditorium.

As it did last year, the federation was again expected to urge enactment of a state income tax. Resolutions also were expected to be adopted urging retention of the 65 percent affirmative vote requirement for approval of special levies and favoring a bipartism commission to operate state highway department.

On national policies, the delegation, according to officials, probably will urge reduction of the public debt and retention of the three and one-half percent interest rate on agricultural loans to farmers.

The program of the two-day session will be featured by talks by state and national leaders, radio entertainment, conferences for youth and farm women, discussion sessions and recreation.

THE VACANCY OF THE COURT

In one of his great dissents Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "I am happy to know that only a minority of my brethren adopt an interpretation of the law which in my opinion would make eternal the war of all against all."

This observation comes to mind when one considers the opportunity which the death of Justice Butler gives to President Roosevelt to place patriotism above politics or personal prejudice.

We have had about all we can stand of the war of all against all. Class against class, group against group, state against state—all struggling to lift themselves by pushing their fellows down.

Mr. Justice Black, on the bench, has asserted that corporations are wholly without the protection of the Constitution. This means, if there are enough Blacks on the bench, so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, corporate property may be confiscated; freedom of a corporate newspaper may be destroyed; utilities may be compelled to render service for nothing. So says Mr. Black.

In the sit-down cases Mr. Roosevelt's appointees, Reed and Black, held in effect that a man may seize by force the property of another, may destroy it by vandalism and still the employer cannot fire him. In this case five judges—none of them were appointed by Mr. Roosevelt—decided the contrary. If that decision had gone the other way, all industry today might be like West Coast shipping in the hands of Harry Bridges.

When he undertook to pack the Supreme Court Mr. Roosevelt insisted on action, now, now, now! He said that solutions could not wait; that it was necessary to have a court to rubberstamp Congress. Mr. Roosevelt and Congress could fix things pronto if the court could be thrust aside.

Well, Mr. Roosevelt has had his action. If that action had brought healing to the nation his impatience with constitutional processes might be overlooked. But has it? What great national problem has been solved? When the war boom is over, as there is some indication will be the case by spring, old problems will rise ominously over a mountain of debt and distrust.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Wagner Labor Act by deciding, in effect, that most manufacturing is subject to regulation as interstate commerce, thus overturning the settled view of a century. So Mr. Roosevelt has the decision he wanted. But has it solved the labor problem? Or the unemployment problem? On the contrary, is there not wider vision between capital and labor, and between labor and labor, than ever before? Millions of workingmen are now forced to pay unwilling tribute for the right to work.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Agricultural Adjustment Act, in effect, overruling its previous judgments. Again Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But does anyone contend that the farm problem is nearer solution than ever before? If so, let him look at the millions of bales of cotton in government warehouses, or the American taxpayer giving 32 cents to foreign buyers as a subsidy to move our wheat, or the constant warfare out of whose hide shall come a quarter of a cent for a bottle of milk.

In the TVA case, the Supreme Court has held that the citizen has no constitutional protection against his own government competing with him, and destroying him. Again, Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But has it brought idle men and idle money together? Has it put men to work? Has any decision of the Supreme Court resulted in more jobs to workers in private employment?

The Supreme Court upheld the Guffey Coal Act. Again Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But has it brought idle men and idle money together? Has it put men to work? Has any decision of the Supreme Court resulted in more jobs to workers in private employment?

This means, if there are enough Blacks on the bench, so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, corporate property may be confiscated; freedom of a corporate newspaper may be destroyed; utilities may be compelled to render service for nothing. So says Mr. Black.

In the sit-down cases Mr. Roosevelt's appointees, Reed and Black, held in effect that a man may seize by force the property of another, may destroy it by vandalism and still the employer cannot fire him. In this case five judges—none of them were appointed by Mr. Roosevelt—decided the contrary. If that decision had gone the other way, all industry today might be like West Coast shipping in the hands of Harry Bridges.

When he undertook to pack the Supreme Court Mr. Roosevelt insisted on action, now, now, now! He said that solutions could not wait; that it was necessary to have a court to rubberstamp Congress. Mr. Roosevelt and Congress could fix things pronto if the court could be thrust aside.

Well, Mr. Roosevelt has had his action. If that action had brought healing to the nation his impatience with constitutional processes might be overlooked. But has it? What great national problem has been solved? When the war boom is over, as there is some indication will be the case by spring, old problems will rise ominously over a mountain of debt and distrust.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Wagner Labor Act by deciding, in effect, that most manufacturing is subject to regulation as interstate commerce, thus overturning the settled view of a century. So Mr. Roosevelt has the decision he wanted. But has it solved the labor problem? Or the unemployment problem? On the contrary, is there not wider vision between capital and labor, and between labor and labor, than ever before? Millions of workingmen are now forced to pay unwilling tribute for the right to work.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Agricultural Adjustment Act, in effect, overruling its previous judgments. Again Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But does anyone contend that the farm problem is nearer solution than ever before? If so, let him look at the millions of bales of cotton in government warehouses, or the American taxpayer giving 32 cents to foreign buyers as a subsidy to move our wheat, or the constant warfare out of whose hide shall come a quarter of a cent for a bottle of milk.

In the TVA case, the Supreme Court has held that the citizen has no constitutional protection against his own government competing with him, and destroying him. Again, Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But has it brought idle men and idle money together? Has it put men to work? Has any decision of the Supreme Court resulted in more jobs to workers in private employment?

The Supreme Court upheld the Guffey Coal Act. Again Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But has it brought idle men and idle money together? Has it put men to work? Has any decision of the Supreme Court resulted in more jobs to workers in private employment?

Village Grain Company Modernizing Its Plant

By S. D. Fridley, Ashville, Phone 79

Because of the need of more space in the feed grinding and mixing department of the local Ashville Grain Company's elevator, the old dust bin is being discarded and a new one erected in another location. And in addition to this new dust house the feed grinding-mixing room has been enlarged by several times. It is a real need being supplied, they told us.

Little Donald Hedges, 18 month old son of Roger and Mrs. Hedges is in Mt. Carmel hospital recovering from an operation for empyema, a fluid collection in the chest region and which is being removed by a drainage tube. His mother is with him. Mrs. Rose Hedges at the home sick for several days confined to her bed, is reported as improving but not able to be about.

Fred Curry and his helpers, Jack Reid and the son Victor Curry, were busy at the cement block plant making up a lot of blocks replacing those which had recently been sold and delivered, when we dropped in at the factory yesterday to learn what the noise was all about. Mr. Curry told us that this last block order was for the new Church of Christ in Christian Union structure which is being built on North Long Street just beyond the corporation line and in size 32 x 50 feet and which does not include the choir room annex. And contacting the church people they told us they hoped to have the building completed by Christmas or soon after. And too, that anyone who cared to assist them by donating work, their services would be very much appreciated.

TAX DELINQUENCY IN PICKAWAY COUNTY AT LOWEST MARK SINCE 1932

AUDITOR SHOWS BIG REDUCTION IN FOUR YEARS

Authorities Attribute Drop To Fact That List Of Land In Default Is Printed

1933 FIGURE IS HIGHEST

1913 Report Disclosed Only $2,563 On Books Not Paid By Residents

During the four year period from 1934 to 1938 delinquent taxes in Pickaway County were reduced $89,161 or 46 percent.

This information is revealed in a report received by Auditor Forrest Short from the State Delinquent Tax Commission of which Mr. Short is secretary.

Delinquent taxes in 1934 amounted to $193,477 while in 1938 they were listed at $104,316. The tax delinquency in 1938 is the lowest since 1932, the state report shows.

The report shows delinquent tax listings in the county since 1913 when they totaled $2,563. From 1913 until 1933 the delinquent taxes in the county increased annually. After 1933 there has been a steady drop. Highest listing was in 1933 with $202,809 recorded in delinquent taxes.

The listings for various years include: 1917, $8,356; 1920, $13,878; 1925, $24,219; 1928, $36,165; 1929, $46,357; 1930, $61,436; 1931, $93,590; 1932, $145,299; 1933, $202,809; 1934, $193,477; 1935, $159,460; 1936, $141,292; 1937, $121,229 and 1938, $104,316.

The steady drop in delinquent taxes in recent years is attributed to a large extent to the delinquent list being advertised, authorities say. Many persons settled their delinquent taxes to prevent their properties being listed as delinquent.

job of reporting the Dutch crisis to Roosevelt, is famous as one of the most quick-tempered men in the diplomatic service.

Some time ago, he was blowing off steam to the under secretary of the Dutch foreign office, who, after listening good-naturedly, remarked: "Do you always get as mad about everything as you do about this?"

Gordon, not knowing whether to be sore or not, finally sputtered: "No. My wife always tells me not to get mad. And I try terribly hard not to. But—oh well, here I am again."

All signs point to the prospect of Jimmy Cromwell being the next Senator from New Jersey. Jimmy, in case you don't remember him, is the husband of Doris Duke, inheritor of the Duke tobacco fortune and probably the richest woman in the world.

Jimmy Cromwell doesn't entirely deserve to be identified merely as Doris' husband, because he is something of a person in his own right, being the son of Mrs. Edward Stotesbury, and having a better-than-average quota of public spirit.

Also Jimmy has written a book. And it was this book which completely upset his senatorial ambitions in 1938. At that time, Mayor Frank Hague, Democratic boss of New Jersey and Jimmy's political impresario, had him all set to run for the Senate. Then suddenly, Hague learned about the book.

Mayor Hague has nothing against literature, and has even learned to tolerate CIO leaflets distributed in Jersey City. But Jimmy Cromwell's book was dynamite.

In it he advocated a sales tax and also birth control. Both are political poison. So, much to Hague's painful regret at having to give up such a lush campaign pool, he had to break the bad news to Jimmy that he was "out" as a candidate.

But now Hague and his lieutenants figure that by 1940 the ill-omened book will have been forgotten and that with the Duke fortune behind him, Jimmy is just the man to challenge multi-millionaire Republican Senator W. Warren Barbour. A battle of millionaires is sweet music to the Hague machine. The pickings have been none too lush in recent years, and some Hague followers are confidently expecting Jimmy to gig in "250 grand."

GROOMING CROMWELL

Meanwhile, under Hague's expert guidance, Jimmy is being built up as a popular candidate.

At the Hyde Park cornerstone ceremonies, he accompanied Hague and mixed genially with the throng—a special attention being given to newsmen. Soon, according to the inside word, just the right kind of a forum will be found for him to make just the right kind of a speech.

Also the Cromwells will not go to their newly-built Hawaiian palace this winter, but will remain at their million dollar estate near

Somerville, N. J., where political wheels already are turning. Local jobless have been put to work on various conservation projects which Jimmy has dubbed the DDWA—Doris Duke Works Administration.

The ornate Somerville estate, with its vast lawns, wondrous gardens, ponds and pools made a deep impression on Mayor Hague during a recent visit there with Governor Harry Moore, another of his proteges. After a jount about the place, Hague turned to Moore and remarked in an awed voice: "Boy, what a place for a clam-bake!"

MERRY GO ROUND

Also on Mayor Hague's list of super-respectable New Jersey candidates is Acting Naval Secretary Charles Edison. However, Edison is not leaving the Navy yet—though he is interested in the governorship. . . . On Secretary Hull's Georgia holiday, his two sport recreations were playing croquet and golf putting. Mrs. Hull was his only partner. . . . A letter addressed to the "Fur Department, Washington, D. C.," was delivered to the State Department. The writer wanted to know about the scilver fox industry.

TWO UNHURT AS PLANE CRASHES IN FARM FIELD

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—Lieut. L. W. Hawes, an instructor at the U. S. Navy training school at Pensacola, Fla., and Ensign Page Smith told today how they narrowly escaped death when their plane crashed in a pasture field in Clinton County.

Lieutenant Hawes and Smith escaped with cuts and bruises but the naval land plane they were flying was wrecked. They were en route from Nashville, Tenn., to Columbus.

LEGION POST EXPECTING CROWD FRIDAY EVENING

Members of Howard Hall Post, American Legion, expect a huge crowd in Memorial Hall Friday night for Million Dollar Night.

In addition to a door prize and a grand prize there will be numerous merchandise prizes awarded throughout the evening. Those attending use stage money to participate in the various concessions. The grand prize is awarded the person with the largest "bankroll" at the close of the entertainment.

Funds obtained from Million Dollar Night will be donated by the American Legion to the Christmas program sponsored by Circleville merchants.

FARM FAMILIES AT CONVENTION

Enactment Of Ohio Income Tax To Be Urged By Rural Delegates

Dozens of Pickaway countians were in Columbus Wednesday attending the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The meeting closes Thursday afternoon.

Pickaway County's delegates to the meeting are Homer Reber, Walnut Township, and T. M. Glick, Circleville Township. James Swearingen and S. B. Chambers, both of Circleville, are alternates.

A group of 30 from the county will take part in the 1,000 voice chorus to sing at the session Wednesday evening in Columbus auditorium.

As it did last year, the federation was again expected to urge enactment of a state income tax. Resolutions also were expected to be adopted urging retention of the 65 percent affirmative vote requirement for approval of special levies and favoring a bipartism commission to operate state highway department.

On national policies, the delegation, according to officials, probably will urge reduction of the public debt and retention of the three and one-half percent interest rate on agricultural loans to farmers.

The program of the two-day session will be featured by talks by state and national leaders, radio entertainment, conferences for youth and farm women, discussion sessions and recreation.

THE VACANCY OF THE COURT

In one of his great dissents Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "I am happy to know that only a minority of my brethren adopt an interpretation of the law which in my opinion would make eternal the war of all against all."

This observation comes to mind when one considers the opportunity which the death of Justice Butler gives to President Roosevelt to place patriotism above politics or personal prejudice.

We have had about all we can stand of the war of all against all. Class against class, group against group, state against state—all struggling to lift themselves by pushing their fellows down.

Mr. Justice Black, on the bench, has asserted that corporations are wholly without the protection of the Constitution. This means, if there are enough Blacks on the bench, so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, corporate property may be confiscated; freedom of the press of a corporate newspaper may be destroyed; utilities may be compelled to render service for nothing. So says Mr. Black.

In the sit-down cases Mr. Roosevelt's appointees, Reed and Black, held in effect that a man may seize by force the property of another, may destroy it by vandalism and still the employer cannot fire him. In this case five judges—none of them were appointed by Mr. Roosevelt—decided the contrary. If that decision had gone the other way, all industry today might be like West Coast shipping in the hands of Harry Bridges.

When he undertook to pack the Supreme Court Mr. Roosevelt insisted on action, now, now, now! He said that solutions could not wait; that it was necessary to have a court to rubberstamp Congress. Mr. Roosevelt and Congress could fix things pronto if the court could be thrust aside.

Well, Mr. Roosevelt has had his action. If that action had brought healing to the nation his impatience with constitutional processes might be overlooked. But has it? What great national problem has been solved? When the war boom is over, as there is some indication will be the case by spring, old problems will rise ominously over a mountain of debt and distrust.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Wagner Labor Act by deciding, effect, that most manufacturing is subject to regulation as interstate commerce, thus overturning the settled view of a century. So Mr. Roosevelt has the decision he wanted. But has it solved the labor problem? Or the unemployment problem? On the contrary, there is now wider division between capital and labor, and between labor and labor, than ever before? Millions of workingmen are now forced to pay unwilling tribute for the right to work.

The Supreme Court has upheld the Agricultural Adjustment Act, in effect, overruling its previous judgments. Again Mr. Roosevelt has his decision. But does anyone contend that the farm problem is nearer solution than ever before? If so, let him look at the millions of bales of cotton in government warehouses, or the American taxpayer giving 32 cents to foreign buyers as a subsidy to move our wheat, or the constant warfare out of whose hide shall come a quarter of a cent for a bottle of milk.
